Barbara Caulfield Named One of the Top 100 Women Litigators

Daily Journal recognizes Managing Partner of Dewey & LeBoeuf's Silicon Valley office as a leader in intellectual property litigation and class actions

(Silicon Valley, CA, May 15, 2009) – Dewey & LeBoeuf LLP is pleased to announce that Barbara Caulfield, Managing Partner of the Silicon Valley office and Co-Chair of the Intellectual Property Litigation Group, is among the Daily Journal's "Top 100 Women Litigators 2009." The listing was published as a supplement to the May 13, 2009 issue.

Ms. Caulfield was recognized for her many complex intellectual property and technology litigation achievements and extensive courtroom experience. As a former Federal District Court Judge, general counsel at a publicly traded company and senior partner at a private law firm, she brings to her practice a unique combination of professional experience. During her career, Ms. Caulfield has successfully defended both Fortune 500 and emerging companies, including Apple, Hoffman-LaRoche and Mobil Oil Corporation, as well as Microsoft in the landmark Sun Microsystems case. In January 2008, she represented Affymetrix Inc. on a patent infringement case, which resulted in the largest biotechnology intellectual property settlement achieved at the time.

"Dewey & LeBoeuf congratulates Barbara Caulfield on this well-deserved recognition," said Steven H. Davis, Chairman at Dewey & LeBoeuf. "She leads a highly skilled team of legal experts in our Silicon Valley office who are dedicated to helping our clients build, utilize and protect a broad portfolio of intellectual property and innovative products."

"It is a true honor to be included in this group of talented litigators," said Ms. Caulfield. "I have spent the majority of my career representing companies at the forefront of technology and I can confirm that an effective intellectual property strategy and enforcement through litigation is often the difference between the success of a company and other outcomes. At Dewey & LeBoeuf, we are now developing winning IP strategies on behalf of a number of biotechnology clients and enabling them to deliver products that improve the way we live our lives."

Prior to joining Dewey & LeBoeuf, Ms. Caulfield was the Executive Vice President and General Counsel for Affymetrix, a biotechnology company in the Silicon Valley. Before working at Affymetrix, she was a partner at a major international law firm, where she served as the San Francisco Litigation Partner-In-Charge from 1997-2001. Previously, Ms. Caulfield served as a United States District Judge in the Northern District of California from 1991-1994. In addition, she has taught various courses at Northwestern Law School, University of California, Hasting College of Law and University of Oregon Law School. She has also given lectures and instructed on trial advocacy programs around the country, including Harvard University Law School and the San Francisco Bar Association Advocacy Training Program.
